

It's time to talk:

Recognizing and addressing physician burnout, moral injury, and suicide

You are invited to join your fellow physicians for a special presentation to highlight the crucial movement toward physician well-being.

Tuesday, Sept. 26

5 p.m. Cocktails and dinner

6 p.m. Presentation and discussion

The Westin Southfield Detroit

1500 Town Center, Southfield, MI 48075

RSVP by Wednesday, Sept. 13

Welcoming guest speaker: Luda Khait-Vlisides, MD

Dr. Luda Khait-Vlisides is the assistant program director and ultrasound director for the DMC Sinai-Grace Emergency Medicine Residency Program. She is the director for the Detroit HEART Program, an initiative that provides free cardiac screens for teen athletes in Detroit. Her interests include physician well-being, burnout, and moral injury, social medicine and ultrasound research. In 2021, Dr. Khait-Vlisides worked with Michigan legislators to adopt a bipartisan, bicameral resolution recognizing September 17 as National Physician Suicide Awareness Day.